

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTION.

THIS little book furnishes a quotation from Kipling for each day in the year. The editor believes there is no similar compilation in the market. After completing his task he has learned, indeed, that a Kipling Birthday Book is on the catalogue of a prominent publisher, but he has not himself seen it. Its purpose must necessarily be different from the present one, for a birthday book aims to present a series of pleasant mottoes appropriate to anniversaries, while a year-book, free from any such restriction, aims at giving a series of suggestive thoughts for daily reading. Many of these bits from Kipling are far from pleasant; they are, however, stimulating, sensible, and true to experience. It should be remembered that the "laureate of the greater Britain" is as much humorist as he is philosopher and bard. His satire is never unkind, but it is often stinging. To omit everything from this collection except pretty paragraphs and verses of compliment would be to present a Rudyard Kipling very untrue to life.

Introduction

For Kipling, of all authors, must be represented adequately if at all; he is not only the most popular of living writers who use the English tongue, he is also the most versatile. Perhaps his principal claim to serious regard is his extraordinary range. Few authors have attained distinguished success in both poetry and prose fiction, but Mr. Kipling has done more than this. His prose fiction itself may be divided into at least ten departments, in each of which he has been notably successful: Novels; Mystery Tales (as The Phantom 'Rickshaw, etc.); Stories about Children (of which Wee Willie Winkie may stand as a type); Humorous Tales (the Mulvaney group, My Sunday at Home, etc.); Military Tales (Drums of the Fore and Aft, the Mutiny of the Mavericks, etc.); Jungle Tales (Mowgli and Beast-Fable group); Sea Tales (Captains Courageous, the Devil and the Deep Sea, etc.); Studies in Native Life and Character (Lispeth, etc.); Scientific and Sporting Tales (The Bridge Builders, The Ship that Found Herself, The Maltese Cat); Society Tales (the Story of the Gadsbys, Under the Deodds).

Rudyard Kipling is still a young man. Born in Bombay, India, on December 30, 1865, his school days were passed in England. His father, Mr. John Lockwood Kipling, is an accomplished artist and clever writer. At seventeen, Rudyard returned to India and entered on a journalistic career as assistant editor of the Lahore Civil and Military Gazette. Several years of drudgery in a newspaper office furnished, perhaps, the best experience Kipling could have had. Mr. E. Kay Robinson, formerly editor of the Gazette, wrote regarding him in McClure's Magazine for July, 1896: "My experience of him as a newspaper hack suggests, however, that if you want to find a man who will cheerfully do the office work of three men, you should catch a young genius. Like a blood horse between the shafts of a coal wagon, he may go near to bursting his heart in the effort, but he'll drag that wagon along as it ought to go. The amount of 'stuff' that Kipling got through in the day was indeed wonderful: and though I had more or less satisfactory assistants after he left, and the staff grew with the paper's prosperity, I am sure that more solid work was done in that office when Kipling and I worked together than ever before or after."

Kipling's subsequent history is known to everybody. It is mainly that of a man of letters turning out book after book in rapid succession. The young journalist had contributed many tales and poems, the latter chiefly satirical, to his own and other Indian papers. These caught the fancy of the Anglo-Indian public and were very widely quoted. In 1886, a small book of verse met with a cordial reception, and with the publication of The Plain Tales from the Hills in 1888 came fame. The history of literature presents nothing more astonishing than the writing of such a book by a youth barely come of age. The Plain Tales disputes with the Jungle Books and The Seven Seas the claim of being Kipling's masterpiece.

In 1889, Kipling went to England and shortly afterward settled in the United States. He built a home in Brattleboro', Vermont, and married a sister of Wolcott Balestier, with whom he collaborated The Naulabka. Subsequently he left America to explore every coast of the seven seas, with headquarters in Great Britain. His is the restless spirit of genius.

A series of animal fables, quite unlike anything in literature, were produced in 1894 and 1895, and revealed an entirely new side of Kipling's personality. In 1897 Captains Courageous, the author's longest sustained narrative, dealt with the lives of Gloucester fishermen.

Mr. Kipling's essays in rhyme have shown a curious evolution. Jingle, verse, poetry,—this is about the order of progression in his three books: Departmental Ditties, Barrack-Room Ballads, and The Seven Seas. The first is catchy and musical, the second clever, the third magnificent.

While, as I have said, any book of selections from Kipling should represent all sides of his genius, it need not represent all periods of the novelist's growth at once. In the present compilation I have confined myself chiefly to Kipling's early books, adding from his later writings only a few widely known poems, notably the Recessional and The Vampire.

Thro' the Year with Kipling

January 1.

GOD of our fathers, known of old —
Lord of our far-flung battle line —
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine —
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget — lest we forget !

Recessional.

January 2.

HE fell to work, whistling softly, and was swallowed up in the clean, clear joy of creation, which does not come to man too often, lest he should consider himself the equal of his God and so refuse to die at the appointed time.

The Light that Failed.

January 3.

YOU sometimes see a woman who would have made a Joan of Arc in another century and climate, threshing herself to pieces over all the mean worry of housekeeping.

Watches of the Night.

Thro' the Ye

January 4.

BECAUSE the city gave him of her gold,
Because the caravans brought turquoises,
Because his life was sheltered by the King,
So that no man should maim him, none should steal,
Or break his rest with babble in the streets
When he was weary after toil, he made
An image of his God in gold and pearl,
With turquoise diadem and human eyes,
A wonder in the sunshine, known afar
And worshipped by the King ; but, drunk with pride,
Because the city bowed to him for God,
He wrote above the shrine : “ *Thus Gods are made,
And whoso makes them otherwise shall die.* ”
And all the city praised him. . . . Then he died.
Evarra and His Gods.

January 5.

EVERY man is entitled to his own religious opinions ;
but no man — least of all a junior — has a right to thrust these down other men's throats.
The Conversion of Aurelian McGoggin.

January 6.

EARNEST, narrow men,
But chiefly earnest, and they'll do your work,
And end by writing letters to the Times.
One Viceroy Resigns.

with Kipling

January 7.

THE tumult and the shouting dies —
The Captains and the Kings depart —
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart.
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget — lest we forget !

Recessional.

January 8.

SPEAKING roughly, you must employ either blackguards or gentlemen, or, best of all, blackguards commanded by gentlemen, to do butcher's work with efficiency and dispatch.

Drums of the Fore and Aft.

January 9.

THE younger generation does not want instruction, being perfectly willing to instruct if any one will listen to it.
The Education of Otis Yeere.

January 10.

THIS is not a tale exactly. It is a Tract ; and I am immensely proud of it. Making a Tract is a Feat.
The Conversion of Aurelian McGoggin.

Thro' the Year

January 11.

THERE was a delightful sense of irresponsibility upon him, such as they feel who walking among their fellow-men know that the death-sentence of disease is upon them, and, since fear is but waste of the little time left, are riotously happy.

The Light that Failed.

January 12.

HIS friends were thankful when he said good-bye, and went out to this mysterious "tea" business near Darjiling. They said: "God bless you, dear boy! Let us never see your face again," — or at least that was what Phil was given to understand.

Yoked with an Unbeliever.

January 13.

HE was clever — brilliantly clever — but his cleverness worked the wrong way. Instead of keeping to the study of the vernaculars, he had read some books written by a man called Comte, I think, and a man called Spencer, and a Professor Clifford. [You will find these books in the Library.] They deal with people's insides from the point of view of men who have no stomachs. There was no order against his reading them; but his Mamma should have smacked him. They fermented in his head, and he came out to India with a rarefied religion over and above his work. It was not much of a creed. It only proved that men had no souls, and there was no God and no hereafter, and that you must worry along somehow for the good of Humanity.

The Conversion of Aurelian McGoggin.

with Kipling

January 14.

I DO not say a word against this creed. It was made up in Town, where there is nothing but machinery and asphalt and building — all shut in by the fog. Naturally, a man grows to think that there is no one higher than himself, and that the Metropolitan Board of Works made everything. But in this country, where you really see humanity — raw, brown, naked humanity — with nothing between it and the blazing sky, and only the used-up, over-handled earth underfoot, the notion somehow dies away, and most folk come back to simpler theories. Life, in India, is not long enough to waste in proving that there is no one in particular at the head of affairs. The Conversion of Aurelian McGoggin.

January 15.

“LIE still, dear lamb, lie still;
The child is passed from harm,
’Tis the ache in your breast that broke your rest,
And the feel of an empty arm.”
The Gift of the Sea.

January 16.

MEN are licensed to stumble, but a clever woman’s mistake is outside the regular course of Nature and Providence; since all good people know that a woman is the only infallible thing in the world, except Government Paper of the ’79 issue, bearing interest at four and a half per cent. The Education of Otis Yeere.

Thro' the Year

January 17.

“‘SHTRIP, bhoys!’ sez I. ‘Shtrip to the buff, an’ shwim in where glory waits!’ ‘But I can’t shwim!’ sez two av thim. ‘To think I should live to hear that from a bhoy wid a board-school edukashin!’ sez I. ‘Take a lump av thimber, an’ me an’ Conolly here will ferry ye over, ye young ladies!’” The Taking of Lungtungpen.

January 18.

“SHE had eyes like the brown av a buttherfly’s wing whin the sun catches ut, an’ a waist no thicker than my arm, an’ a little sof’ button av a mouth I wud ha’ gone through all Asia bristlin’ wid bay’nits to get the kiss av. An’ her hair was as long as the tail av the Colonel’s charger — forgive me mintionin’ that blunderin’ baste in the same mouthful with Annie Bragin — but ’t was all shpun gold, an’ time was whin a lock av ut was more than di’monds to me.”

The Solid Muldoon.

January 19.

“NO wise man has a policy,” said the Viceroy. “A Policy is the blackmail levied on the Fool by the Unforeseen. I am not the former, and I do not believe in the latter.”

I do not quite see what this means, unless it refers to an Insurance Policy. Perhaps it was the Viceroy’s way of saying, “Lie low.”

A Germ Destroyer.

with Kipling

January 20.

FAR-CALLED our navies melt away —
On dune and headland sinks the fire —
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre !
Judge of the Nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget — lest we forget !

people with only a single idea. These are the men who make things move ; but they are not nice to talk to.

January 23.

TRANSFERRED to the Eternal Settlement,
Each in his straight, wood-scantled office pent,
No longer Brown reverses Smith's appeals,
Or Jones records his Minute of Dissent.

And One, long since a pillar of the Court,
As mud between the beams thereof is wrought ;

And One who wrote on phosphates for the crops
Is subject-matter of his own Report.

The Last Department.

Thro' the Year

January 24.

HE was a six-thousand-rupee man, so great that his daughters never "married." They "contracted alliances." He himself was not paid. He "received emoluments," and his journeys about the country were "tours of observation." His business was to stir up the people in Madras with a long pole — as you stir up tench in a pond — and the people had to come up out of their comfortable old ways and gasp: "This is Enlightenment and progress. Isn't it fine!" Then they gave Mellish statues and jasmine garlands, in the hope of getting rid of him.

IF he had gone on with his work, he would have been caught up to the Secretariat in a few years. He was just the type that goes there — all head, no physique and a hundred theories.

INVENTORS seem very much alike as a caste. They talk loudly, especially about "conspiracies of monopolists;" they beat upon the table with their fists; and they secrete fragments of their inventions about their persons.

January 27.

WE found him dead, beneath an old dead horse,
Full six miles down the valley. So we said
He was a victim to the Demon Drink,
And moralized upon him for a week,
And then forgot him. Which was natural.

Griffen's Debt.

January 28.

LOVE and Death once ceased their strife
At the Tavern of Man's Life.
Called for wine, and threw — alas ! —
Each his quiver on the grass.
When the bout was o'er they found
Mingled arrows strewed the ground.
Hastily they gathered then
Each the loves and lives of men.
Ah, the fateful dawn deceived !
Mingled arrows each one sheaved :
Death's dread armory was stored
With the shafts he most abhorred :
Love's light quiver groaned beneath
Venom-headed darts of Death.
Thus it was they wrought our woe
At the Tavern long ago.
Tell me, do our masters know,
Loosing blindly as they fly,
Old men love while young men die ?

The Explanation.

Thro' the Year

January 29.

HE worked brilliantly ; but he could not accept any order without trying to better it. That was the fault of his creed. It made men too responsible and left too much to their honor.

And triumph for my own. You 're young, you 're

You hold to half a hundred Shibboleths.
I 'm old. I followed Power to the last,
Gave her my best, and Power followed Me.

One Viceroy Resigns.

February 2.

WE are a high-caste and enlightened race, and infant-marriage is very shocking and the consequences are sometimes peculiar ; but, nevertheless, the Hindu notion — which is the Continental notion, which is the aboriginal notion — of arranging marriages irrespective of the personal inclinations of the married, is sound. Think for a minute, and you will see that it must be so ; unless, of course, you believe in “affinities.” In which case you had better not read this tale. How can a man who has never married ; who cannot be trusted to pick up at sight a moderately sound horse ; whose head is hot and upset with visions of domestic felicity, go about the choosing of a wife ? He cannot see straight or think straight if he tries ; and the same disadvantages exist in the case of a girl's fancies. But when mature, married, and discreet people arrange a match between a boy and a girl, they do it sensibly, with a view to the future, and the young couple live happily ever afterwards. As everybody knows.

Thro' the Year

February 3.

Yet wreaths are on the Altar laid —the Altar-stone

"For, it may be, if still we sing and tend the Shrine,

And, finding all in order meet,

February 7.

IF McGoggin had kept his creed, with the capital letters and the endings in "isms," to himself, no one would have cared : but his grandfathers on both sides had been Wesleyan preachers, and the preaching strain came out in his mind. He wanted every one at the Club to see that they had no souls too, and to help him to eliminate his Creator.
As a good many men told him, he undoubtedly had no soul,

Then the Registrar slides the blotting-pad over the names, and says grimly, with his pen between his teeth: "Now you're man and wife;" and the couple walk out into the street, feeling as if something were horribly illegal somewhere.

Youth had been a habit of hers for so long that she could not part with it, — never realized, in fact, the necessity of parting with it, — and took for her more chosen associates young people.

The lightning spattered the sky as a thrown egg spatters a barn door, but the light was pale blue, not yellow ; and looking through my slit bamboo blinds, I could see the great dog standing, not sleeping, in the veranda, the hackles alift on her back, and her feet planted as tensely as the drawn wire rope of a suspension bridge. WHETHER Christianity improved Lispeth, or whether the gods of her own people would have done as much for her under any circumstances, I do not know; but she grew very lovely. When a Hill girl grows lovely, she is worth travelling fifty miles over bad ground to look upon. Lispeth had a Greek face, — one of those faces people paint so often, and see so seldom. She was of a pale, ivory color, and, for her race, extremely tall. Also, she possessed eyes that were wonderful; and, had she not been dressed in the abominable print-cloths affected by Missions, you would, meeting her on the hillside unexpectedly, have thought her the original Diana of the Romans going out to slay.

LISPETH took to Christianity readily, and did not abandon it when she reached womanhood, as do some Hill girls. Her own people hated her because she had, they said, become a memsahib and washed herself daily; and the Chaplain's wife did not know what to do with her. Somehow, one cannot ask a stately goddess, five foot ten in her shoes, to clean plates and dishes. So she played with the Chaplain's children and took classes in the Sunday-school, and read all the books in the house, and grew more and more beautiful, like the Princesses in fairy tales. The Chaplain's wife said that the girl ought to take service in Simla as a nurse or something "genteel." But Lispeth did not want to take service. She was very happy where she was.

SUNDAY brought me the queerest experiences of all, — a revelation of barbarism complete. I found a place that was officially described as a church. It was a circus really, but that the worshippers did not know. There were flowers all about the building, which was fitted up with plush and stained oak and much luxury, including twisted brass candlesticks of severest Gothic design.

To these things and a congregation of savages entered suddenly a wonderful man, completely in the confidence of their God, whom he treated colloquially and exploited very much as a newspaper reporter would exploit a foreign potentate. But, unlike the newspaper reporter, he never allowed his listeners to forget that he, and not He, was the centre of attraction. With a voice of silver and with imagery borrowed from the auction-room, he built up for his hearers a heaven on the lines of the Palmer House (but with all the gilding real gold, and all the plate-glass diamond), and set in the centre of it a loud-voiced, argumentative, very shrewd creation that he called God. One sentence at this point caught my delighted ear. It was apropos of some question of the Judgment, and ran : —

“No ! I tell you God does n't do business that way.”

He was giving them a deity whom they could comprehend.

DO you know what life at a Mission outpost means? Try to imagine a loneliness exceeding that of the smallest station to which Government has ever sent you — isolation that weighs upon the waking eyelids and drives you perforce headlong into the labors of the day. In the morning, with a patter of soft feet, the converts, the doubtful, and the open scoffers troop up to the veranda. You must be infinitely kind and patient, and, above all, clear-sighted, for you deal with the simplicity of childhood, the experience of man, and the subtlety of the savage.

SO it came to pass that, after some purchase of horse-flesh and arrangements financial and political, Dick was made free of the New and Honorable Fraternity of war correspondents, who all possess the inalienable right of doing as much work as they can and getting as much for it as Providence and their owners shall please. To these things are added in time, if the brother be worthy, the power of glib speech that neither man nor woman can resist when a meal or a bed is in question, the eye of a horse-coper, the skill of a cook, the constitution of a bullock, the digestion of an ostrich, and an infinite adaptability to all circumstances. But many die before they attain to this degree; and the past-masters in the craft appear for the most part in dress-clothes when they are in England, and thus is their glory hidden from the multitude. The Light that Failed.

ONE of the few advantages that India has over England is a great Knowability. After five years' service a man is directly or indirectly acquainted with the two or three hundred civilians in his province, all the messes of ten or twelve regiments and batteries, and some fifteen hundred other people of the non-official caste. In ten years his knowledge should be doubled, and at the end of twenty he knows, or knows something about, every Englishman in the Empire, and may travel anywhere and everywhere without paying hotel-bills.

You foreshorten as though you never used the model, and you've caught Kami's pasty way of dealing with flesh in shadow. Then, again, though you don't know it yourself, you shirk hard work. Suppose you spend some of your time on line alone. Line does n't allow of shirking. Oils do, and three square inches of flashy, tricky stuff in the corner of a pic sometimes carry a bad thing off, — as I know. That's immoral."

“DO line-work for a little while, and then I can tell more about your powers, as old Kami used to say.”

Maisie protested ; she did not care for the pure line.

“I know,” said Dick. “You want to do your fancy heads with a bunch of flowers at the base of the neck to hide bad modelling.” The red-haired girl laughed a little. “You want to do landscapes with cattle knee-deep in grass to hide bad drawing. You want to do a great deal more than you can do. You have sense of color, but you want form. Color’s a gift,—put it aside and think no more about it,—but form you can be drilled into. Now, all your fancy heads—and some of them are very good—will keep you exactly where you are. With line you must go forward or backward, and it will show up all your weaknesses.”

“But other people—” began Maisie.

“You must n’t mind what other people do. If their souls were your soul, it would be different. You stand and fall by your own work, remember, and it’s waste of time to think of any one else in this battle.”

LOOK to a man who has the counsel of a woman of or above the world to back him. So long as he keeps his head, he can meet both sexes on equal ground, — an advantage never intended by Providence, who fashioned Man on one day and Woman on another, in sign that neither should know more than a very little of the other's life. Such a man goes far, or, the counsel being withdrawn, collapses suddenly while his world seeks the reason.

And the sides of that gulf were one wild welter of color, — crimson, emerald, cobalt, ochre, amber, honey splashed with port wine, snow-white, vermillion, lemon, and silver-gray in wide washes. The sides did not fall sheer, but were graven by time and water and air into monstrous heads of kings, dead chiefs — men and women of the old time. So far below that no sound of its strife could reach us, the Yellowstone River ran, a finger-wide strip of jade green.

NOW India is a place beyond all others where one must not take things too seriously — the mid-day sun always excepted. Too much work and too much energy kill a man just as effectively as too much assorted vice or too much drink. Flirtation does not matter, because every one is being transferred and either you or she leave the Station, and never return. Good work does not matter, because a man is judged by his worst output and another man takes all the credit of his best as a rule. Bad work does not matter, because other men do worse, and incompetents hang on longer in India than anywhere else. Amusements do not matter, because you must repeat them as soon as you have accomplished them once, and most amusements only mean trying to win another person's money. Sickness does not matter, because it's all in the day's work, and if you die another man takes over your place and your office in the eight hours between death and burial. Nothing matters except Home furlough and acting allowances, and these only because they are scarce. This is a slack, *kutch*a country, where all men work with imperfect instruments; and the wisest thing is to take no one and nothing in earnest, but to escape as soon as ever you can to some place where amusement is amusement and a reputation worth the having.

Few pastors will tell you of these things any more than they will speak of that young David of St. Bees, who, set apart for the Lord's work, broke down in the utter desolation, and returned half distraught to the head mission, crying, "There is no God, but I have walked with the Devil!"

The reports are silent here, because heroism, failure, doubt, despair, and self-abnegation on the part of a mere cultured white man are things of no weight as compared to the saving of one half-human soul from a fantastic faith in wood-spirits, goblins of the rock, and river-fiends.

The Light that Failed.

December 18.

SHE made no sign when Holden entered, because the human soul is a very lonely thing, and when it is getting ready to go away hides itself in a misty border-land where the living may not follow.

Without Benefit of Clergy.

December 19.

A MAN who rides much knows exactly what a horse is going to do next before he does it. In the same way, a woman of Mrs. Hauksbee's experience knows accurately how a boy will behave under certain circumstances.

The Rescue of Pluffles.

with Kipling

December 20.

WHEN a man is a Commissioner and a bachelor and has the right of wearing open-work jam-tart jewels in gold and enamel on his clothes, and of going through a door before every one except a Member of Council, a Lieutenant-Governor, or a Viceroy, he is worth marrying. At least, that is what ladies say. There was a Commissioner in Simla, in those days, who was, and wore, and did, all I have said. He was a plain man—an ugly man—the ugliest man in Asia, with two exceptions. His was a face to dream about and try to carve on a pipe-head afterwards.

Cupid's Arrows.

December 21.

WHEN a matured man discovers that he has been deserted by Providence, deprived of his God, and cast without help, comfort, or sympathy upon a world which is new and strange to him, his despair, which may find expression in evil-living, the writing of his experiences, or the more satisfactory diversion of suicide, is generally supposed to be impressive. A child, under exactly similar circumstances, as far as its knowledge goes, cannot very well curse God and die. It howls till its nose is red, its eyes are sore, and its head aches. Punch and Judy, through no fault of their own, had lost all their world. They sat in the hall and cried.

Baa, Baa, Black Sheep.

December 22.

“MY heart was hung on a hair-trigger those days.”

The Courting of Dinah Shadd.

Thro' the Year

December 23.

THIS may sound too sudden a revulsion for a long-wedded wife ; but it is a venerable fact that, if a man or woman makes a practice of, and takes a delight in, believing and spreading evil of people indifferent to him or her, he or she will end in believing evil of folk very near and dear. You may think, also, that the mere incident of the watch was too small and trivial to raise this misunderstanding. It is another aged fact that, in life as well as racing, all the worst accidents happen at little ditches and cut-down fences.

Watches of the Night.

December 24.

HIGH noon behind the tamarisks — the sun is hot above us —

As at Home the Christmas Day is breaking wan.
They will drink our healths at dinner — those who tell us
how they love us,
And forget us till another year be gone !
Oh the toil that needs no breaking ! Oh the Heimweh, ceaseless, aching !
Oh the black dividing Sea and alien Plain !
Youth was cheap — wherefore we sold it.
Gold was good — we hoped to hold it,
And to-day we know the fulness of our gain.

Christmas in India.

with Kipling

December 25.

BLACK night behind the tamarisks — the owls begin their chorus —

As the conches from the temple scream and bray.
With the fruitless years behind us, and the hopeless years before us,

Let us honor, O my brothers, Christmas Day!

Call a truce, then, to our labors — let us feast with friends and neighbors,

And be merry as the custom of our caste ;
For if "faint and forced the laughter," and if sadness follow after,

We are richer by one mocking Christmas past.

Christmas in India.

December 26.

WERE the Day of Doom to dawn to-morrow, you would find the Supreme Government "taking measures to allay popular excitement," and putting guards upon the graveyards that the Dead might troop forth orderly.
The youngest Civilian would arrest Gabriel on his own responsibility if the Archangel could not produce a Deputy Commissioner's permission to "make music or other noises," as the form says.

On the City Wall.

December 27.

HE thought he could do everything well ; which is a beautiful belief when you hold it with all your heart.
He was clever in many ways, and good to look at, and always made people round him comfortable.

Consequences.

Thro' the Year with Kipling

December 28.

IT was a sin, a grievous sin, and Punch was talked to for a quarter of an hour. He could not understand where the iniquity came in, but was careful not to repeat the offence, because Aunty Rosa told him that God had heard every word he had said and was very angry. If this were true, why did n't God come and say so, thought Punch, and dismissed the matter from his mind.

Baa, Baa, Black Sheep.

December 29.

"I WON'T allow you to be spiteful and do bad work for a little thing like that. You can be so big that you must n't be tiny."

The Light that Failed.

December 30.

THE ideal soldier should, of course, think for himself. . . . Unfortunately, to attain this virtue, he has to pass through the phase of thinking of himself, and that is mis-directed genius.

Drums of the Fore and Aft.

December 31.

IT may be that Fate will give me life and leave to row once more —

Set some strong man free for fighting as I take awhile his oar.

But to-day I leave the galley. Shall I curse her service then?
God be thanked — whate'er comes after, I have lived and toiled with Men!

The Galley-Slave.
